

ABSTRACT

A method and system for auditing information technology used to handle financial statement accounts to secure sensitive financial information against the exploitation of vulnerabilities and ineffective configuration standards. By working with 5 the client organization, an audit team evaluates the way the client organization controls sensitive IT systems. The audit team is able to assess the client organization's internal control processed and recommend improvements.